BRIAN TRUEMAN: COSGROVE HALL ANIMATION SCRIPTS

Brian Trueman started writing for Cosgrove Hall Productions (Thames TV's subsidiary) in 1976. In chronological order:

Chorlton and the Wheelies

A model animation series for children from 3 to 8, it had a following among older children as well as adults.

3 x 13 part series of 10'00" episodes

Cockleshell Bay

A model animation series for the younger child. The earlier series had been fantasy-based, Cockleshell dealt with the ordinary lives and problems of two "ordinary" children.

101 episodes of 8 x 13 part series of 10'00" series

Dangermouse!

A drawn animation series for the 8 to 14 year old - and anyone else who would watch it.

9 x 13 part series - 4 x 13 x 10'00" episodes
1 x 13 x 5'00" episodes per week
4 x 13 x 22'00" episodes

1 x 6 part series of 22'00" episodes

Nickelodeon in the US bought Dangermouse. Series nominated for BAFTA award.

Wind in the Willows

Model animation (8-14 years). The five series were a spin-off form an adaptation of Kenneth Grahame's book by Rosemary Ann Sisson who wrote six of the first thirteen episodes, Brian Trueman writing the rest.

5 x 13 part series of 22'00"

1 x 60'00" Christmas Special

Disney bought Wind in the Willows for transmission in the US. Nominated for BAFTA award.

Alias the Jester

Drawn animation (8-14 years). Series won the BAFTA award for Best Animation film in 1988 but was replaced in the studio productions schedules by the Count Duckula co-production with Nickelodeon. There was, therefore, only one series. All episodes of 1 x 13 part series of 22'00"

Count Duckula

Drawn animation (nominally 8-14 years). The schedule demanded a very fast turnover and there were therefore three writers. (Brian Trueman was also writing Wind in the Willows.)

5 x 13 part series of 22'00" episodes

and 1 x 13 part series of 22'00" episodes written and recorded but not made

Wrote 34 of a total of 78 scripts.

Victor and Hugo

Drawn animation (8-14 years). Two writers.

3 x 13 part series of 22' 00" episodes

Wrote 21 out of 39 scripts

Truckers

Terry Pratchett's comedy / drama sci-fi (nominally 11-15 year olds) adapted as model animation series.

Wrote 1 x 13 part serial of 10'00" episodes. (Transmitted ITV early 1992)

All the above are Cosgrove Hall productions in which Brian was involved in the development of concepts, characters, storylines as senior writer and script consultant establishing the conventions, speech patterns and "tone" for the series.
